3 Day - Murchison Falls National Park

Uganda's largest national park (3,893km²) is named for the dramatic Murchison Falls, where the world's longest river explodes violently through a gap in the rocks, only 7 metres (23 ft) wide, and tumbles 43 metres (141 ft), then flows westward into Lake Albert. Murchison Falls National Park in the Albertine Rift Valley in the northwest of Uganda is approximately 90km from Masindi. The falls were named after Sir Roderick Murchison, president of the Royal Geographical Society by the explorer Sir Samuel Baker.

The park consists of a mixture of woodland, wetland, savannah as well as tropical forest and is a habitat for over 76 mammal species and over 450 different bird species. Large mammals include hippo, Rothschild's giraffe, warthog, cape buffalo, Uganda kob, hartebeest and elephant.

The River Nile at Murchison has a wide variety of water birds such as rare shoebill stork and also has a large concentration of Nile crocodile. Kaniyo Pabidi forest is a home to primates, chimpanzees and over 360 species of different birds.

In the lush grassland to the north of the Nile, elephant, buffalo, giraffe and a variety of antelope are regularly encountered on game drives, while lion are seen with increasing frequency. In the southeast, Rabongo Forest is home to chimps and other rainforest creatures.

The Nile itself hosts one of Africa's densest hippo and crocodile populations, and a dazzling variety of waterbirds including the world's most accessible wild population of the rare shoebill stork. An essential half day trip is the launch trip that goes up stream to observe the Falls and riverbank wildlife. The round trip takes approximately 3 hrs.

The most spectacular view of the waterfall is at the top where the sight & sound of the Nile crashing through a narrow chasm to plunge into the frothing pool 43m below makes a memorable assault on the senses. It can be reached either by car or on foot.

The Nile below Murchison Falls offers exciting challenges to anglers with a chance to land a huge Nile Perch (the record is 108kg). Fishing is restricted to designated sites. Places are limited so advance booking is recommended. A number of boats can be hired for sportfishing by prior booking.

The dry seasons are usually from December to mid February and June and July. The rainy season is between April and November. Day time temperatures are around 29c. It is well worth visiting Murchison Falls National Park at any time of year.

Rwenzori Mountain Expedition - The Rwenzori Mountain Ranges

Also named "Mountains of the Moon" by Ptolemy, the Alexandrine geographer in AD 150, who originally thought this was the source of the Nile mainly due to it being the first snowcapped mountain range seen deep in the heart of Africa. Over the centuries, this myth faded until in 1889 Henry Stanley confirmed its existence and mapped it by its local name "Rwenjura" meaning rain maker. It rises about 4000m from the Albertine Rift valley and is the highest Mountain Range in East Africa. It was formed over 3 million years ago. The range is about 120 km (75 m) long and 65 km (40 m) wide. It consists of six massifs separated by deep gorges: Mount Stanley (5,109m), Mount Speke (4,890m), Mount Baker (4,843m), Mount Emin (4,798m), Mount Gessi(4,715m) and Mount Luigi di savoia (4,627m). Mount Stanley is the largest and has several subsidiary summits, with Margherita Peak being the highest point. The rock is metamorphic, and the mountains are believed to have been tilted and squeezed upwards by plate movement. They are in an extremely humid area, and frequently enveloped in clouds.

The Ruwenzori are known for their vegetation ranging from tropical rainforest through alpine meadows to snow; and for their animal population, including forest elephants several primate species like the white colubus and blue monkey and many endemic birds. The range supports its own species and varieties of Giant groundsel and Giant Lobellia and even has a six metre high heather covered in moss that lives on one of its peaks.

It is bisected by the Uganda Congo Border which passes through Mt.Stanley. To get there you travel from Kampala by road for 375-450km, depending on the route used. Age Safaris would like to offer you the options below for your mountain trekking;

Option one: Eight day trek to Mount Baker
